

HELIUM TESTED IN NAVAL BALLOON PROVES SUCCESS

Non-Inflammable Gas, of Which U. S. Has Monopoly, Used in First Flight.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Naval non-rigid dirigible C-7, her gas envelope filled with 181,000 cubic feet of helium gas, late yesterday made two flights, each of one hour's duration, from the naval air station at Hampton Roads, Va.

Rear Admiral W. A. Moffet, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, last night received a report on the flights by long-distance telephone from Commander Lansdowne, a lighter-than-air specialist, who acted as a member of the crew.

This is the first time an airship filled with helium gas has made a flight. Commander Lansdowne reported that the C-7 was handled easily and that the tests were very successful in every way.

The original plan was to have the C-7 fly to Washington and return, but weather conditions were not favorable and this flight has been postponed until Monday. If weather conditions are favorable Monday the C-7 will fly to Washington and circle above the Capitol and other public buildings.

The C-7 has a length of 192 feet, extreme height 59 feet, maximum diameter of hull 42 feet, extreme width (over fins) 33 feet and a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Next to hydrogen, helium is the lightest gas known and is generally recognized as the only gas that can take the place of hydrogen in lighter-than-air craft. It is non-inflammable and for this reason of great military value. It has 92 per cent of the lifting power of hydrogen.

Helium for military and commercial purposes is obtainable in sufficient quantities only from certain natural gas fields in the United States, giving this country a virtual monopoly of the source of supply.

MARIE DRESSLER IN CLASH OVER DALTON'S BODY

Boston Woman Claims She, and Not Actress, Is Legal Widow.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The body of J. H. Dalton, said to be the husband of Marie Dressler, comedienne, is the subject of a controversy. Dalton was taken ill while Miss Dressler was playing here and did not accompany her to St. Louis. Last week he died in a hotel. Miss Dressler returned in haste and set about arranging for the funeral. Now comes a demand from a woman in Boston, who asserts she is the real Mrs. Dalton and asks the authorities to ship the body to Corning, N. Y., for burial. She appealed to the Boston police and said she would come to Chicago to verify her claim if necessary. Manager Florentine, of the Congress Hotel, said:

"Dalton was known here as Miss Dressler's husband. He died on Nov. 29 of apparently natural causes. He had been under treatment of a Christian Scientist practitioner named Davis. Mr. Davis said Dalton had Bright's disease."

Miss Dressler left the city at 11 o'clock last night.

"I have nothing to say. I have done my duty," she said.

"Did you meet Mr. Dalton on a railway train as this other woman says?"

"I have nothing to say. Mine is the burden and mine is the sorrow. I do not see why I should discuss it." James Marshall, an undertaker at Austin, a suburb, has charge of Dalton's body. Marshall said he had received orders to ship the body to Corning.

"I did not see Mrs. Dalton," said Marshall. "I received instructions through one of her assistants. Yes, she is Marie Dressler, the actress. They told me she had been married a year. I understand that Mrs. Dalton is going East with the body tonight. James H. Dalton and Marie Dressler met in 1912 at Mr. Dalton's summer home, Loat Haven, Windsor, Vt. According to newspaper stories about this place at this time Mr. Dalton acted as the business representative of Miss Dressler in her profession and also was interested in mining and other business ventures."

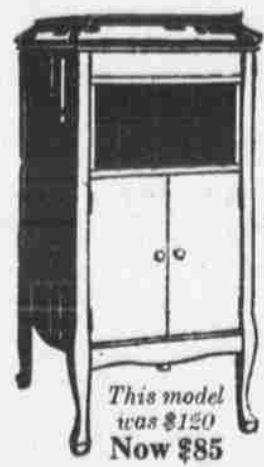

Boston Mrs. Dalton Says Husband Deserted Her.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Mrs. L. A. Dalton of No. 69 Brighton Avenue, Allston, said today that her husband became acquainted with Miss Dressler in a railway train and that he finally deserted her and their daughter. She declared that since that time she has lived either in Brookline or Allston without making any effort to communicate with her husband.

According to Mrs. Dalton, she was married to James H. Dalton in Jersey City twenty-two years ago. Her husband, she said, was owner of a chain of grocery stores in Boston and Brookline, and for a number of years they lived happily in a beautiful home in Brookline.

We carry only guaranteed merchandise—make all our Men's Clothing, and sell at about wholesale prices.

You see them worn by the leading dressers of the city—those swagger-looking garments shown in the windows of the so-called exclusive stores this season up to $45. Here they are

Any man who knows the styles of to-day will be quick to recognize in these overcoats similar garments to those other stores are featuring at higher prices.

Gentlemen:
For more than fifteen years I have been disarming high clothing prices.

This disarmament talk is old stuff with me. Why, for over fifteen years, I've been a leader in disarming high clothing prices while others were wind-jamming and pondering over what to do. I acted! My fabrics and tailors are the best money can buy. BUT MY PRICE HAS ALWAYS AND ALWAYS WILL BE LOWER THAN OTHERS
